

Reflect on what you can do to change the dynamic between you and [your most challenging student] from one where they are a problem that you're trying to solve to one where they are a human being that you're trying to be in relationship and community with.

—Carla Shalaby, p. 14